THE BOLDEST TRIUMPH of UBC Press’s first half-century is the unique vitality the Press’s publications have brought and continue to bring to the world of ideas – foregrounding scholarship that eclipses the status quo and stands anew, inviting discussion, demanding debate, challenging an outworn record. Our authors’ works have a constant and intellectually kinetic influence on our understanding of Canada as a land of many nations and a home to many peoples, of diverse geography and human culture, of laws and struggles, of rights and relationships, of achievements and atrocities, and, the necessary prologues to ongoing learning and transformation.

UBC Press has always been and remains a shared endeavour. Books are born of discussion – sometimes over years – between authors and acquisitions editors. A work’s merit is furthered by peer reviewers and the discerning assessment of the UBC Press Publications Board. Manuscripts are shaped by the experience of production editors, as well as freelancers, and then made known through the creativity of marketing initiatives. Booksellers and librarians fill their shelves, physical and digital, with our publications and those who review the books assess whether, in their view, the choices made were wise (in our view, they always are!). Readers, in all ways, have the final word.

Incorporating greater diversity and inclusion throughout the Press’s undertakings is critical to its future success. A leader on that path is the recently launched RavenSpace, a digital publishing model for collaborative authorship between Indigenous communities and researchers. It is with excitement and a strength of purpose that we look forward to UBC Press’s next half-century and responding to the changing dynamic and needs of the academy as it engages with broader public conversations.

The cumulative energy that brings UBC Press to its robust fiftieth year is exhilarating. We thank the University of British Columbia for creating and supporting a university press and to everyone, each and all, who has contributed along the way.

Mischief Making
Michael Nicoll Yahgulanaas, Art, and the Seriousness of Play
Nicola Levell, with Michael Nicoll Yahgulanaas; foreword by Nobuhiro Kishigimi

In a gorgeously illustrated exploration of the art of Michael Nicoll Yahgulanaas, Mischief Making disproves any notion that play is frivolous. Deploying playful and punning tactics, Yahgulanaas shines a spotlight on serious topics.

Expressive and exuberant, comic and imaginative: these characteristics suffuse the work of the internationally recognized creator of Haida manga. His distinctive style stretches, twists, and flips the formlines of classic Haida art to create imagery that resonates with the graphic vitality of Asian manga. Mischief Making delineates the evolution of the artist’s visual practice into a uniquely hybrid aesthetic, uncovering its philosophical underpinnings.

This engaging, beautiful book reveals the artist’s deep understanding of the seriousness of play. As he investigates the intersections of Indigenous and other world views, the politics of land, cultural heritage, and global ecology, Yahgulanaas disrupts the expected, allowing different ways of experiencing, knowing, and seeing the world to emerge.

Nicola Levell is a curator and an associate professor of museum and visual anthropology at the University of British Columbia. Michael Nicoll Yahgulanaas is a visual artist and author. He is the creator of Haida manga, an artistic genre that crosses cultures and disciplines.

Adjusting the Lens
Indigenous Activism, Colonial Legacies, and Photographic Heritage
Edited by Sigrid Lien and Hilde Wallem Nielsen

Adjusting the Lens explores the role of photography in contemporary renegotiations of the past and in Indigenous art activism. Through moving and powerful case studies, contributors analyze photographic practices and heritage related to Indigenous communities in Canada, Australia, Greenland, Norway, Sweden, Finland, and the United States. In the process, they call attention to how Indigenous people are using old photographs in new ways to empower themselves, revitalize community identity, and decolonize the colonial record.

The original research presented in Adjusting the Lens offers a transnational perspective on this emerging field in Indigenous photography studies. It is an exciting collection that challenges old ways of thinking and meaningfully advances the crucially important project of reclamation.

You @ the U
A Guided Tour through Your First Year of University

Janet Miller; foreword by Elder Roy Bear Chief

If you’re gearing up for university, you probably have a few fears and concerns. Am I smart enough? How do I know which major is a good choice? How can I make friends, get good grades, and still get enough sleep?

Whether you’re making the transition to university straight out of high school or have taken a gap year (or a few!), this guided tour through first year demystifies the process, from registering for class and making the most of orientation to knowing when to pull an all-nighter and making time to prep for exams.

University is supposed to be challenging, but, as Janet Miller promises, it doesn’t need to be stressful or overwhelming. As a university counsellor and registered psychologist with a behind-closed-doors view of university life, she understands that when students have guidance and support – when they know what to expect – they thrive.

With wit and wisdom, she shares what she’s learned from thousands of students who have walked the campus hallways before you. This book doesn’t tell you what you should do. It tells you what you need to know so you can follow in their footsteps and hit your own stride.

JANET MILLER is a university student counsellor and registered psychologist who has devoted her career to student success and mental health. She is a counsellor and professor at Mount Royal University and an adjunct professor at the University of Calgary.

Making the Case
LGBTQ2S+ Rights and Religion in Schools
Donn Short, Bruce MacDougall, and Paul T. Clarke

A principal forbids same-sex prom dates. A community group tries to prohibit gender-neutral bathrooms. Despite growing acceptance of LGBTQ2S+ rights, Canadian schools regularly become battlegrounds in clashes between students wishing to express their sexuality or gender identity and those who perceive this as a threat to their values.

Making the Case clearly shows how Canadian law responds to “competing” human rights claims, when there is a clash between people asserting sexual minority rights and those asserting religious rights. The authors call on related court cases to explain the position of Canadian law. They demonstrate that Canadians have rights to religion and rights to gender expression or sexual orientation; and that supporting sexual minority rights does not undermine other people’s rights to religious freedom.

This accessible book is an important tool for anyone working to create an inclusive school environment, or needing to respond to a rights-based conflict within their school.

A Long Way to Paradise
A New History of British Columbia Politics

Robert A.J. McDonald; foreword by Tina Loo

Polarized. Partisan. The BC political landscape has been characterized by divisiveness since Confederation. As outsized personalities from Amor De Cosmos to W.A.C. Bennett dominated the halls of power, militant radicals and reformers took to the streets and hustings. A Long Way to Paradise traces the evolution of political ideas from 1871 to 1972 to explore British Columbia’s journey to socio-political maturity, answering both why and how British Columbia became Canada’s most fractious province. Robert McDonald explains its classic left-right divide as a product of “common sense” liberalism that also shaped how British Columbians met the challenges of a modernizing world. McDonald tackles key questions: Why were the Liberal and Conservative parties obliterated in the 1950s? What can account for Bennett’s decades-long reign? And why did parties as diametrically opposed as Social Credit and the NDP succeed? This lively overview provides fresh insight into the fascinating story of provincial politics in Canada’s lotus land.

Robert A.J. McDonald was professor emeritus of history at the University of British Columbia and a leading historian of British Columbia. He was the author Making Vancouver: Class, Status, and Social Boundaries, 1863–1913, president of the Vancouver Historical Society, and a much-loved teacher.

Truth and Conviction
Donald Marshall Jr. and the Mi’kmaw Quest for Justice
L. Jane McMillan

“Jane McMillan has written an admirable, engaging, and formidable book about an Indigenous man’s quest for justice against the systemic injustices of Canada.”

— SÁKÉJ HENDERSON, Research Fellow, Native Law Centre of Canada, University of Saskatchewan

In the fall of 2020, tensions erupted between Indigenous and non-Indigenous commercial fishermen over lobster fishing in Nova Scotia. Headlines about the confrontation, in which a lobster plant was burned to the ground and catches made by Indigenous fishers were destroyed or released, were seen around the world. The Indigenous fishers stated they were being attacked for exercising their legal treaty rights, backed up by the 1999 Supreme Court’s Marshall decision. This is the story of Donald Marshall Jr. and his lifelong fight against injustice. His legacy lives on as Mi’kmaw continue to assert their rights and build justice programs grounded in customary laws and practices.

L. JANE MCMILLAN is the former Canada Research Chair for Indigenous Peoples and Sustainable Communities and chair of the Department of Anthropology at St. Francis Xavier University in Antigonish, Nova Scotia.
Ours by Every Law of Right and Justice
Women and the Vote in the Prairie Provinces
Sarah Carter

Many of Canada’s most famous suffragists lived and campaigned in the Prairie provinces, which led the way in granting women the right to vote and hold office. In Ours by Every Law of Right and Justice, Sarah Carter challenges the myth that grateful male legislators simply handed women the vote when it was asked for. Settler suffragists worked long and hard to overcome obstacles and persuade doubters. But even as they petitioned for the vote for their sisters, they often approved of that same right being denied to “foreigners” and Indigenous peoples. By situating the suffragists’ struggle in the colonial history of Prairie Canada, this powerful and passionate book shows that the right to vote meant different things to different people.

Sarah Carter is the author of numerous books and articles on the history of women and First Nations in Prairie Canada, including Imperial Plots: Women, Land, and the Spadework of British Colonialism on the Canadian Prairies. She is a professor and the Henry Marshall Tory Chair in the Department of History and Classics and the Faculty of Native Studies at the University of Alberta.

Canada 1919
A Nation Shaped by War
Edited by Tim Cook and J.L. Granatstein

“A new world began in 1919. As great empires crumbled and traditions did not hold, Canadians saw their country in new and different ways. Canada 1919 possesses an exceptionally wide vision, one that reveals how a tumultuous year dramatically changed how Canadians came to think differently about their politics, art, women, the war, and what Canada could be.”

— John English, Bill Graham Centre for Contemporary International History

With compelling insight, Canada 1919 exposes the ways in which the First World War shaped and changed Canada – and the ways it did not.

Tim Cook, CM, FRSC, is the First World War Historian at the Canadian War Museum and the author of eleven books on Canada’s military and political role in the First and Second World Wars. J.L. Granatstein, OC, FRSC, is Distinguished Research Professor of History Emeritus at York University, a former director and CEO of the Canadian War Museum, and the author of many books on Canadian military history, politics, and foreign policy.
The Laws and the Land
The Settler Colonial Invasion of Kahnawà:ke in Nineteenth-Century Canada

Daniel Rück

As the settler state of Canada expanded into Indigenous lands, settlers dispossessed Indigenous nations and undermined their sovereignty. The Laws and the Land shows how Canada invaded one Indigenous community, Kahnawà:ke, where settler law clashed with Indigenous law in a bruising series of asymmetrical encounters over land use and ownership. The Laws and the Land delineates the route from pre-contact and early contact ways of sharing land to the establishment of Kahnawà:ke within the French seigneurial system, land use and regulation under Kahnawà:ke law, and ultimately the colonizing push to impose the Indian Act and private property. What Daniel Rück describes is little short of an invasion spearheaded by bureaucrats, Indian agents, politicians, surveyors, and entrepreneurs. This original, meticulously researched book is deeply connected to larger issues of membership in Indigenous nations, communal versus individual property rights, governance, and inequality. It is the story of Canada’s legal and environmental conquest of Indigenous peoples and lands, and the persistence of one Indigenous nation.

This book is co-published in association with the Osgoode Society for Canadian Legal History.

Daniel Rück is an assistant professor in the Department of History and in the Institute of Indigenous Research and Studies at the University of Ottawa.

Debt and Federalism
Landmark Cases in Canadian Bankruptcy and Insolvency Law, 1894–1937

Thomas G.W. Telfer and Virginia Torrie; foreword by Iain Ramsay

The legal meaning of bankruptcy and insolvency law has often remained elusive, even to practitioners and scholars in the field, despite having been enshrined in Canada’s Constitution since Confederation. Federal power in this area must be measured against provincial jurisdiction over property and civil rights, among others. Debt and Federalism traces changing conceptions of the bankruptcy and insolvency power through four landmark cases that form the constitutional foundation of the Canadian bankruptcy system: the 1894 Voluntary Assignments case, Royal Bank of Canada v Larue in 1928, the 1934 Companies’ Creditors Arrangement Act Reference, and the 1937 Farmers’ Creditors Arrangement Act Reference. Together, these decisions ultimately produced the bedrock for modern understandings of bankruptcy and insolvency law. Thomas G.W. Telfer and Virginia Torrie draw on archival and legal sources to analyze the decisions from a historical and doctrinal perspective. This astute book demonstrates that the legal changes introduced by these landmark cases underpin contemporary bankruptcy and insolvency law and scholarship.
No Legal Way Out
R v Ryan, Domestic Abuse, and the Defence of Duress

Nadia Verrelli and Lori Chambers

“Nadia Verrelli and Lori Chambers provide readers with a marvellously compelling version of a case with great public importance. This is an important and impressive work.”

— CONSTANCE BACKHOUSE, professor of law, University of Ottawa

An RCMP sting caught Nicole Doucet (Ryan) trying to hire a hitman to kill her ex-husband. It was supposed to be an open-and-shut case. It wasn’t.

No Legal Way Out details the judicial process, media coverage, and legal implications of R v Ryan. Appealed up to the Supreme Court of Canada, Doucet’s initial acquittal – on the basis of duress in the context of abuse – was overturned, but a stay of proceedings meant that she could not be tried again. The court castigated the RCMP for not protecting her, prompting a one-sided investigation that ultimately exonerated the force and garnered substantial critical media attention for Doucet.

R v Ryan limited the legal options for women seeking to escape abuse and had a profoundly negative impact on public perceptions of domestic violence. This unabashedly feminist analysis explains why the court, the police, and the media let down all women trapped by intimate partner terrorism.

Reconciling Truths
Reimagining Public Inquiries in Canada

Kim Stanton

Hundreds of commissions of inquiry have been struck in Canada since before Confederation, but many of their recommendations have never been implemented.

Reconciling Truths explores the role and implications of commissions such as Canada’s Truth and Reconciliation Commission and the National Inquiry into Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls, and particularly their limits and possibilities in an era of reconciliation with Indigenous peoples. Whether it is a public inquiry, truth commission, or royal commission, the chosen leadership and processes fundamentally affect its ability to achieve its mandate. Kim Stanton provides examples and in-depth critical analysis of these factors to offer practical guidance on how to improve the odds that recommendations will be implemented.

As a forthright examination of the institutional design of public inquiries, Reconciling Truths affirms their potential to create a dialogue about issues of public importance that can prepare the way for policy development and shifts the dominant Canadian narrative over time.

KIM STANTON is a Canadian lawyer and a scholar of commissions of inquiry. She is a commissioner on the joint federal/provincial public inquiry into the April 2020 mass casualty event in Nova Scotia.

Behind Closed Doors
The Law and Politics of Cabinet Secrecy

Yan Campagnolo; foreword by
The Honourable Louis LeBel, C.C.

“Yan Campagnolo’s excellent book is rigorous, learned, very well-written, clear, and to the point. It is a must-read for scholars as well as public officials and judges.”
— SUZANNE COMTOIS, professor, Faculty of Law, Université de Sherbrooke

In an era where government transparency and accountability are considered fundamental values, does Cabinet secrecy still have a place? The legal and political rules that protect the confidentiality of collective decision making at the highest level of the state executive have come under increasing scrutiny in Canada.

Behind Closed Doors is the first comprehensive work on this controversial doctrine. Yan Campagnolo defends the practice of Cabinet secrecy by demonstrating that it is essential to the proper functioning of responsible government, while finding that the statutory provisions that support secrecy at the federal level are excessively broad and quite possibly unconstitutional.

Employing a comparative analysis of the rules that apply provincially in Canada and in the United Kingdom, Australia, and New Zealand, this meticulous work proposes a feasible solution: specific reforms that would achieve a better balance between transparency and confidentiality.

YAN CAMPAGNOLO is an associate professor in the Faculty of Law at the University of Ottawa and a member of the Ontario Bar. He is the author of Le secret ministériel: Théorie et pratique and, with Adam Dodek, La constitution canadienne, as well as numerous peer-reviewed articles in French and English.
Women, Film, and Law
Cinematic Representations of Female Incarceration
Suzanne Bouclin

Entertainment and profit constitute the driving forces behind most popular representations of incarcerated women. Some cinematic representations, however, and the women-in-prison genre especially, can generate complex legal meanings and leave viewers feeling unsettled about women’s incarceration. Focusing on five exemplary films and one television series, Orange Is the New Black, from 1933 to the present, Women, Film, and Law asks how fictional representations explore, shape, and refine beliefs about women’s incarceration. Suzanne Bouclin convincingly argues that popular depictions of women’s prisons can illuminate multiple forms of marginalization and oppression experienced by women in conflict with the law.

Suzanne Bouclin is an associate professor in the Faculty of Law at the University of Ottawa.

Exporting Virtue?
China’s International Human Rights Activism in the Age of Xi Jinping
Pitman B. Potter

“Exporting Virtue? will become part of the bedrock of how academics approach the conceptualization of Chinese policy and political culture.”
— LARRY BACKER, professor, Faculty of Law and the School of International Affairs, Pennsylvania State University

Exporting Virtue? examines human rights as an example of China’s international assertiveness and considers the implications of internationalizing PRC human rights policy and practice. Pitman B. Potter suggests that in the absence of clear and enforceable global human rights standards, China uses its international influence to promote its human rights policies on global governance, freedom of expression, trade and investment policy, and labour and environmental regulation.

Pitman B. Potter is Professor of Law Emeritus at the Peter A. Allard School of Law at the University of British Columbia.
So Much More Than Art
Indigenous Miniatures of the Pacific Northwest
Jack Davy

“So Much More Than Art goes beyond other studies by demonstrating how Northwest Coast Indigenous artists use and have used miniaturization not only as an artistic practice but in provoking interventions in social relations and as a strategy of communication and resistance in the face of colonialism.”
— KAREN DUFFEK, curator, Contemporary Visual Arts and Pacific Northwest, Museum of Anthropology at UBC

Miniature canoes, houses and totems, and human figurines have been produced on the Northwest Coast since at least the sixteenth century. What has motivated Indigenous artists to produce these tiny artworks? Are they curios, toys, art, or something else?

So Much More Than Art is a highly original exploration of this intricate cultural pursuit. Through case studies and conversations with contemporary Indigenous artists, Jack Davy uncovers the ways in which miniatures have functioned as crucial components of satirical opposition to colonial government, preservation of traditional techniques, and political and legal negotiation.

This nuanced study of a hitherto misunderstood practice demonstrates the importance of miniaturization as a technique for communicating complex cultural ideas between generations and communities, and across the divide that separates Indigenous and settler societies. Most of all, So Much More Than Art is a testament to the cultural resilience of the Indigenous peoples of the Northwest Coast.
Métis Rising
Living Our Present Through the Power of Our Past
Edited by Yvonne Boyer and Larry Chartrand

Métis Rising draws on a remarkable cross-section of perspectives to tell the histories and stories of people from richly varied backgrounds, demonstrating that there is no single Métis experience – only a common sense of belonging and a commitment to justice.

The contributors to this unique collection, most of whom are Métis themselves, examine often-neglected aspects of Métis existence. They talk about the arduous journey to rebuild the Métis nation from a once-marginalized and defeated people; their accounts range from personal reflections on identity to tales of advocacy against poverty and poor housing and for the recognition of Métis rights.

Métis Rising is an extraordinary work that exemplifies how contemporary Métis identity has been forged into a force to be reckoned with.

Beyond Rights
The Nisga’a Final Agreement and the Challenges of Modern Treaty Relationships

Carole Blackburn

In 2000, the Nisga’a treaty marked the culmination of over one hundred years of Nisga’a people protesting, petitioning, litigating, and negotiating for recognition of their rights and land title. Beyond Rights explores this groundbreaking achievement and its impact.

The Nisga’a were trailblazers in gaining Supreme Court recognition of unextinguished Aboriginal title, and the treaty marked a turning point in the relationship between First Nations and provincial and federal governments. By embedding three key elements – self-government, title, and control of citizenship – the Nisga’a treaty tackled fundamental issues concerning state sovereignty, the underlying title of the Crown, and the distribution of rights.

Using this pivotal case study, Beyond Rights analyzes both the potential and the limits of treaty making as a way to address historical injustice and to achieve contemporary legal recognition. It also assesses the possibilities for a distinct Indigenous citizenship in a settler state with a long history of exclusion and assimilation.
To Share, Not Surrender
Indigenous and Settler Visions of Treaty Making in the Colonies of Vancouver Island and British Columbia

Edited by Peter Cook, Neil Vallance, John Lutz, Graham Brazier, and Hamar Foster

“...makes between the events of the 1850s and 1860s and the modern-day treaty process in British Columbia extremely valuable. It helps the reader develop a better understanding, not only of colonial history, but also of the relevance of Indigenous law to territorial claims today.”

— KENT McNEIL, author of Flawed Precedent: The St. Catherine’s Case and Aboriginal Title

To Share, Not Surrender presents multiple views and lived experience of the treaty-making process and its repercussions in the Colonies of Vancouver Island and British Columbia, and publishes, for the first time, the Vancouver Island treaties in First Nations languages.

“There is no comparable work to The Social Life of Standards, a breakthrough book which successfully – even brilliantly – articulates an approach to the study of standards that is sensitive to local contexts and alert to the politics of knowledge in the making.”

— VICTOR BRAITBERG, assistant professor, Honors College and School of Anthropology, University of Arizona

Through twelve ethnographic case studies, The Social Life of Standards reveals how standards – political and technical tools for organizing society – are developed, applied, subverted, contested, and reassembled by local communities interacting with norms often created by others.

JANICE GRAHAM is a professor of medicine and anthropology at Dalhousie University. CHRISTINA HOLMES is an assistant professor of health at St. Francis Xavier University. FIONA MCDONALD is co-director of the Australian Centre for Health Law Research at Queensland University of Technology. REGNA DARNELL is a distinguished professor emerita at Western University.
Making and Breaking Settler Space
Five Centuries of Colonization in North America

Adam J. Barker

“Making and Breaking Settler Space offers a comprehensive analysis of the colonial spatialities inherent to the settler state. It is an innovative interpretation of the affective dimensions of settler colonialism, from its obsessive drive for ownership, control, and transcendence to the possibilities that come from failing to meet these expectations.”

— SOREN LARSEN, professor of geography, University of Missouri

Four hundred years. A vast geography. And an unfinished project to remake the world to match the desires of settler colonizers. How have settlers used violence and narrative to transform Turtle Island into “North America”? What does that say about our social systems, and what happens next?

Drawing on multiple disciplines, archival sources, pop culture, and personal experience, Making and Breaking Settler Space creates a model that shows how settler spaces have evolved. From the colonization of Turtle Island in the 1500s to problematic activist practices by would-be settler allies today, Adam Barker traces the trajectory of settler colonialism, drawing out details of its operation and unflinchingly identifying its weaknesses.

Making and Breaking Settler Space proposes an innovative, unified spatial theory of settler colonization in Canada and the United States. In doing so, it offers a framework within which settlers can pursue decolonial actions in solidarity with Indigenous communities.

CANADIAN HISTORY / HISTORICAL GEOGRAPHY

A Bounded Land
Reflections on Settler Colonialism in Canada

Cole Harris

“This is historical geography at its best. A Bounded Land combines the realities of colonial daily life with attention to international imperial strategies and economic forces. As Canada grapples with reconciliation, this beautifully written book gives important insight into Canada’s retrenched colonial nature.”

— ANNE GODLEWSKA, professor, Department of Geography and Planning, Queen’s University

Through a series of vignettes that focus on people’s experiences on the ground, Harris exposes the underlying architecture of settler colonialism as it grew and evolved, from the first glimpses of new lands and peoples, to the immigrant experience in early Canada, to the dispossession and resettlement of First Nations in British Columbia. In the process, he explores how Canada’s settler societies differed from their European progenitors and, more theoretically, how colonialism managed to dispossess.

COLE HARRIS is the editor of the first volume of the Historical Atlas of Canada and the author, among other works, of Making Native Space: Colonialism, Resistance, and Reserves in British Columbia and The Reluctant Land: Society, Space, and Environment in Canada before Confederation. He is a professor emeritus of historical geography at the University of British Columbia.

Frontiers of Feminism
Movements and Influences in Québec and Italy, 1960–80

Jacinthe Michaud

“The 1960s to the 1980s was an effervescent period for socio-political movements and offers fertile ground for studying the links forged within these movements. Jacinthe Michaud ventures into uncharted territory by analyzing the Québec and Italian feminist movements during this time and masterfully bringing to light their ideological and contextual influences.”

— JOHANNE DAIGLE, professor of history, Université Laval

This astute study combines feminist materialism and social movement theories to explore the principal ideological concerns of Québécois and Italian feminists, including Marxism, nationalism, Third World liberation discourse, and counter-cultural narratives. Identifying the convergences in and differences between these themes, Jacinthe Michaud shows how feminist responses to key topics of the time highlight the complexity of this multifaceted political movement.

JACINTHE MICHAUD is a professor and former chair of the School of Gender, Sexuality and Women’s Studies at York University.
A Liberal-Labour Lady
The Times and Life of Mary Ellen Spear Smith
Veronica Strong-Boag

A Liberal-Labour Lady restores British Columbia's first female MLA and the British Empire's first female cabinet minister to history. An imperial settler, liberal-labour activist, and mainstream suffragist, Mary Ellen Smith (1863–1933) demanded a fair deal for “deserving” British women and men in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries.

Born in England in 1863, the daughter and wife of miners, she emigrated to Nanaimo, BC, in 1892. As she became a well-known suffragist and her husband Ralph won provincial and federal elections, the power couple strove to shift Liberal parties leftward to benefit women and workers, while still embracing global assumptions of British racial superiority and bourgeois feminism’s privileging of white women. Ralph’s 1917 death launched Mary Ellen as a candidate in a tumultuous 1918 Vancouver by-election. In the BC legislature until 1928, Smith campaigned for better wages, pensions, and greater justice, even as she endorsed anti-Asian, settler, and pro-eugenic policies. Simultaneously intrepid and flawed, Mary Ellen Smith is revealed to be a key figure in early Canada's compromised struggle for greater justice.

VERONICA STRONG-BOAG is a historian specializing in the history of Canadian women and children. She is a professor emerita in the Social Justice Institute and the Department of Educational Studies at the University of British Columbia and an adjunct professor in history and gender studies at the University of Victoria. The author of many publications and the recipient of numerous awards and honours, she is also the general editor of UBC Press’s seven-volume series, Women’s Suffrage and the Struggle for Democracy.

Where are the women in Canada’s international history? Breaking Barriers, Shaping Worlds answers this question in a comprehensive volume that explores the role of women in Canadian international affairs.

Foreign policy historians have traditionally focused on powerful men. Though hidden, forgotten, or ignored, this book shows that women have also shaped Canada’s international relations with the world over the past century – whether as activists, missionaries, aid workers, diplomats, or diplomatic spouses.

Breaking Barriers, Shaping Worlds examines the lives and careers of professional women working abroad as doctors, nurses, or economic development advisers; women fighting for change as anti-war, anti-nuclear, or Indigenous rights activists; and women engaged in traditional diplomacy. This wide-ranging collection reveals the vital contribution of women to the search for global order that has been a hallmark of Canada’s international history.
Transformative Media
Intersectional Technopolitics from Indymedia to #BlackLivesMatter

Sandra Jeppesen

“In 1999, Seattle activists adopted cutting-edge livestream technology to cover protests against the World Trade Organization. The Indymedia network that emerged established the importance of alternative, anti-capitalist media for marginalized groups.

Transformative Media explores subsequent developments as the anti-oppression practices of digitally facilitated movements and media activists began contributing to a nascent intersectional technopolitics: harnessing the transformative power of technologies for political purposes. Drawing on participatory research, Sandra Jeppesen investigates the complex, often contradictory digital and offline practices of grassroots media and social movement groups such as Indignados, #BlackLivesMatter, Idle No More, 2LGBTQ+, and #MeToo.

This groundbreaking work examines how a broad array of anti-capitalists, women, Black, Indigenous, and people of colour, and 2LGBTQ+ people are contesting interlocking systems of capitalism, gender oppression, racism, colonialism, and heteronormativity. Transformative Media takes us behind the scenes of some of the world’s most exciting and controversial social movements.”

“Based on a thorough understanding of movements and their media, Transformative Media offers important insights and is a pleasure to read.”

White Space
Race, Privilege, and Cultural Economies of the Okanagan Valley
Edited by Daniel J. Keyes and Luis L.M. Aguiar

“With its focus on regional specificity, White Space makes a distinctive contribution to the critical literature on white privilege and spatial imaginaries of race in Canada.”
— JENNIFER HENDERSON, associate professor, Department of English and School of Indigenous & Canadian Studies, Carleton University

Much attention has been paid to race in the Canadian metropolis, but how are the workings of whiteness manifested in the rural-urban spaces? White Space analyzes the dominance of whiteness in the Okanagan Valley of British Columbia to expose how this racial notion sustains forms of settler privilege today.

Contributors to this perceptive collection critique the cultural economics of whiteness and white supremacy. The first half documents the historical construction of whiteness: how settlers and their ancestors have sought to exalt pioneers by erasing non-whites from the region’s heritage while Indigenous people resist this whiteout. The second half explores the persistence of whiteness as an organizing principle in the neoliberal deindustrialized present.

White Space moves beyond appraising whiteness as if it were a solid and unshakeable category. Instead it offers a powerful demonstration of how the concept can be re-envisioned, resisted, and reshaped in contexts of economic change.
Twice Migrated, Twice Displaced
Indian and Pakistani Transnational Households in Canada

Tania Das Gupta

Twice Migrated, Twice Displaced explores the lives of Gulf South Asians who arrived in the Greater Toronto Area from India and Pakistan via Persian Gulf countries such as the United Arab Emirates and Saudi Arabia. Tania Das Gupta reveals the multiple migration patterns of this unique group, analyzing themes such as gender, racial, and religious discrimination; class mobility; the formation of transnational families; and identities in a post-9/11 context.

Twice Migrated, Twice Displaced concludes that neoliberal economies in South Asia, the Gulf, and Canada create conditions for flexible labour by privatizing and diminishing social welfare. As migrants then search for employment, families are split across borders – making those relationships more precarious. The ambivalent, hybrid identities that result have implications for Canada in terms of community building, diaspora, citizenship, and migrants’ sense of belonging.

TANIA DAS GUPTA is a professor in the School of Gender, Sexuality and Women’s Studies at York University. She is the author of Real Nurses and Others: Racism in Nursing and Racism and Paid Work.
Assisted Suicide in Canada
Moral, Legal, and Policy Considerations
Travis Dumsday

“In Travis Dumsday has given a fair-minded account, even of arguments that he is countering. His book will inform and promote informed public debate about a contentious issue.”
— MICHAEL YEO, professor, Department of Philosophy, Laurentian University

In 2015, the Supreme Court of Canada struck down the criminal laws prohibiting assisted suicide and voluntary active euthanasia in its Carter v. Canada ruling. Yet debate on this controversial subject continues. Assisted Suicide in Canada delves into the moral and policy dimensions of this case, summarizing previous federal and provincial rulings on medical assistance in dying (MAID), as well as explaining subsequent legislation. Travis Dumsday engages in an accessible yet nuanced exploration of the most significant ethical arguments and unravels related legal and policy debates. Thorny issues such as freedom of conscience for health care professionals, public funding for MAID, and extensions of eligibility are dealt with thoughtfully and clearly. Carter v. Canada will alter Canadians’ common understanding of life, death, and the practice of medicine for generations. Assisted Suicide in Canada provides readers with the tools to think through the fundamental legal, ethical, and policy issues surrounding assisted dying.

Neighbourhood Houses
Building Community in Vancouver
Edited by Miu Chung Yan and Sean Lauer; foreword by David Hulchanski

Globalization and migration are creating disconnected societies in modern urban cities, and urban communities are at risk of becoming fragmented. Neighbourhood Houses draws on a five-year study to document and contextualize an antidote: the neighbourhood house movement. Contributors outline the history of the Vancouver neighbourhood house network, its relationship with local government and other organizations in the region, the programs and activities offered, and the experiences of participants. By providing health services, public recreation, daycare, adult literacy classes, and other programming, neighbourhood houses are revealed to be community hubs that bring both newcomers and neighbours together.

MIU CHUNG YAN is a professor in the School of Social Work at the University of British Columbia and was the principal investigator of a five-year multidisciplinary study of the neighbourhood house movement. SEAN LAUER is an associate professor at the University of British Columbia and a co-author of Getting Married: The Public Nature of Our Private Relationships.

Rising Up
The Fight for Living Wage Work in Canada
Edited by Bryan Evans, Carlo Fanelli, and Tom McDowell

“The living wage movement is shifting the goalposts of socially acceptable employment practice. Thanks to the determined efforts of living wage advocates and researchers, employers face growing social and regulatory pressure to pay workers enough to lead healthy, balanced lives. This rich and timely collection will be an indispensable reference for those striving to win a living wage for all workers: it shows what's worked, what hasn't worked, and how the immense potential of this movement to transform employment can be fulfilled.”

POLITICAL SCIENCE

The Government of Natural Resources
Science, Territory, and State Power in Quebec, 1867–1939
Stéphane Castonguay; foreword by Graeme Wynn

“Quietly Shrinking Cities is extremely well-written and a joy to read. The analytical framework it introduces is very valuable for urban studies scholars worldwide.”
— SHARMISTHA BAGCHI-SEN, professor of geography, State University of New York at Buffalo

At 5 percent, Canada’s population growth was the highest of all G7 countries when the most recent census was taken. But only a handful of large cities drove that growth, attracting human and monetary capital from across the country and leaving myriad social, economic, and environmental challenges behind. Quietly Shrinking Cities investigates this trend and the practical challenges associated with population loss in smaller urban centres. Maxwell Hartt meticulously demonstrates that shrinking cities need to rethink their planning and development strategies in response to a new demographic reality, questioning whether population loss and prosperity are indeed mutually exclusive.

MAXWELL HARTT is an assistant professor in the Department of Geography and Planning at Queen’s University, Kingston.

The Government of Natural Resources
Science, Territory, and State Power in Quebec, 1867–1939
Stéphane Castonguay; foreword by Graeme Wynn

The Government of Natural Resources explores government scientific activity in Quebec from Confederation until the Second World War. Scientific and technical personnel are an often quiet presence within the state, but they play an integral role. By tracing the history of geology, forestry, fishery, and agronomy services, Stéphane Castonguay reveals how the exploitation of natural resources became a tool of government. As it shaped territorial and environmental transformations, scientific activity contributed to state formation and expanded administrative capacity. This thoughtful reconceptualization of resource development reaches well beyond provincial borders, changing the way we think of science and state power.

STÉPHANE CASTONGUAY is a professor of environmental history and Quebec studies at the Université du Québec à Trois-Rivières.
From Dismal Swamp to Smiling Farms
Food, Agriculture, and Change in the Holland Marsh
Michael Classens

“This book is that rare thing, a serious work of historical scholarship that also tells a complete story: how the Holland Marsh and its history contribute to Canada’s current system of food and agriculture.”
— JAMES MURTON, associate professor, Department of History, Nipissing University

Driving through the Holland Marsh one is struck immediately by the black richness of its soil. This is some of the most profitable farmland in Canada. But the small agricultural preserve just north of Toronto is a canary in a coal mine. From Dismal Swamp to Smiling Farms recounts the transformation, use, and protection of the Holland Marsh, exploring how human ideas about nature shape agriculture, while agriculture in turn shapes ideas about nature. Drawing on interviews, media accounts, and archival data, Michael Classens concludes that celebrations of the Marsh as the quintessential example of peri-urban food sustainability and farmland protection have been too hasty. Instead, he demonstrates how capitalism and liberalism have fashioned and ultimately imperilled agriculture in the area.

This fascinating case study reveals the contradictions and deficiencies of contemporary farmland preservation paradigms, highlighting the challenges of forging a more socially just and ecologically rational food system.
Against the Tides
Reshaping Landscape and Community in Canada's Maritime Marshlands

Ronald Rudin

“Told using primary sources that have rarely, if ever, been exploited, Against the Tides is truly something new under the sun. Rudin succeeds in making the fragmented and chaotic story of the Marshlands both understandable and highly interesting.”
— MATTHEW HATVANY, professor, Department of Geography, Université Laval

For four centuries, dykes held back the largest tides in the world, in the Bay of Fundy region of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. These dykes turned salt marsh into arable land and made farming possible, but by the 1940s they had fallen into disrepair. Against the Tides is the never-before-told story of the Maritime Marshland Rehabilitation Administration (MMRA), a federal agency created in 1948 to reshape the landscape. Although agency engineers often borrowed from long-standing dykeland practices, they were so convinced of their own expertise that they sometimes disregarded local conditions, marginalizing farmers in the process. The engineers’ hubris resulted in tidal dams that compromised some of the region’s rivers, leaving behind environmental damage. This book is a vivid, richly detailed account of a distinctive landscape and its occupants, revealing the push-pull of local and expert knowledge and the role of the state in the postwar era.

RONALD RUDIN is Distinguished Professor Emeritus in the Department of History at Concordia University, Montreal. He is the author of numerous books, among them Remembering and Forgetting in Acadie: A Historian’s Journey through Public Memory and Kouchibougouac: Removal, Resistance, and Remembrance at a Canadian National Park.
In 1971, authorities in Islamabad perpetrated mass atrocities in East Pakistan in an attempt to thwart a struggle for autonomy by terrorizing the local population into submission. The West and the Birth of Bangladesh explores the decision-making processes and ethical debates in Washington, Ottawa, and London during the crucial first few months of the crisis. US president Richard Nixon and his national security adviser, Henry Kissinger, favoured appeasement of Islamabad. The Canadian government was unwilling to hazard bilateral ties with Pakistan. Under public pressure, only the UK showed somewhat greater willingness to coerce Islamabad into ending its oppressive actions. Richard Pilkington also analyzes the interplay of US, Canadian, and British responses toward East Pakistan, and the available policy options. This insightful book reveals how blinkered government actors were too preoccupied with protecting national interests to take firm action during the crisis, even as human-rights movements took hold around the globe.

Nursing Shifts in Sichuan
Canadian Missions and Wartime China, 1937–51
Sonya Grypma

“Nursing Shifts in Sichuan is truly hard to put down! This is an exciting read, albeit sometimes a sad one, written by an outstanding scholar of nursing, religion, and mission. Social history at its best.”
— BARBRA MANN WALL, professor, School of Nursing, University of Virginia

Nursing Shifts in Sichuan illuminates one of the most consequential additions to early-twentieth-century health care in China. In 1943, the Peking Union Medical College (PUMC) was forced to evacuate to the Canadian West China Mission in Chengdu, Sichuan. As part of an extraordinary mass migration to Free China during the Japanese occupation, the refugee PUMC was hosted by the Canadian West China Mission for the next three years.

During that period, the PUMC transformed nursing at the Canadian mission, initiating the second university nursing program in the country. Both programs were closed by the new Communist government in 1951. When China reopened degree programs thirty-five years later, it was PUMC alumnae who helped restart them.

In the contemporary era of exponential increases in East-West educational exchanges, Nursing Shifts in Sichuan offers both a cautionary tale about the fragility of transnational relations and a testament to the resilience of educated women.

Building the Army’s Backbone
Canadian Non-Commissioned Officers in the Second World War
Andrew L. Brown

In September 1939, the Canadian army, a tiny force of around 55,000 regulars and reservists, began a remarkable expansion. No army can function without a backbone of skilled non-commissioned officers (NCOs) – corporals, sergeants, and warrant officers – and the army needed to create one out of raw civilian material. Building the Army’s Backbone tells the story of how senior leadership created a corps of NCOs that helped the burgeoning force train, fight, and win. This innovative book uncovers the army’s two-track NCO-production system: locally organized training programs were run by units and formations, while centralized programs were overseen by the army. Meanwhile, to bring coherence to the two-track approach, the army circulated its best-trained NCOs between operational forces, the reinforcement pool, and the training system. The result was a corps of NCOs that collectively possessed the essential skills in leadership, tactics, and instruction to help the army succeed in battle.

Portraits of Battle
Courage, Grief, and Strength in Canada’s Great War
Edited by Peter Farrugia and Evan J. Habkirk

“Richly detailed, Portraits of Battle is devoted to the recognition of the Canadians who fought in the Great War, their bravery and their fears, and the sacrifices made both by the soldiers and their families at home.”
— JAMES WOOD, professor of history, Okanagan College

Portraits of Battle brings together biography, battle accounts, and historiographical analysis to examine the lives of a cross-section of Canadians who served in the war, exploring key issues in the process. Contributors to this thoughtful collection consider the range of people touched by war – soldiers and their loved ones, deserters, nurses, Indigenous people, those injured in body or mind – and raise fundamental questions about the nature of conflict and memory.

PETER FARRUGIA is an associate professor in the History and Social and Environmental Justice programs at Wilfrid Laurier University. EVAN J. HABKIRK is a lecturer in the Indigenous Studies program at the University of Western Ontario and in the History Department at Wilfrid Laurier University.

An Army of Never-Ending Strength
Reinforcing the Canadians in Northwest Europe, 1944–45
Arthur W. Gullachsen

“Gullachsen shows how the Canadian Army constantly regenerated its fighting power through prompt replacement of men and weapons lost during the brutal battles for the liberation of Europe in 1944–45. He has mined a wealth of information buried deep in the archives to tell a story essential to understanding how the Canadian forces crushed a supremely tenacious enemy.”
— ROGER SARTY, professor of history, Wilfrid Laurier University

As Canadians battled through Northwest Europe in the late stages of the Second World War, how did they reinforce their front line? And at what cost? An Army of Never-Ending Strength investigates the operational record of the First Canadian Army during 1944–45 to provide detailed insight into previously unexplored areas of its administrative systems, structure, and troop and equipment levels.

ARTHUR W. GULLACHSEN is an assistant professor in the History Department of the Royal Military College of Canada.
Able to Lead
Disablement, Radicalism, and the Political Life of E.T. Kingsley

Ravi Malhotra and Benjamin Isitt

Eugene T. Kingsley led an extraordinary life: he was once described as “one of the most dangerous men in Canada.” In 1890, Kingsley was working as a railway brakeman in Montana when an accident left him a double amputee, and politically radicalized. Ravi Malhotra and Benjamin Isitt trace Kingsley’s political journey from soapbox speaker in San Francisco to prominence in the Socialist Party of Canada. They examine Kingsley’s endeavours for justice against the Northern Pacific Railway, and how his life intersected with immigration law and free-speech rights. Able to Lead highlights Kingsley’s profound legacy for the twenty-first-century political left.

RAVI MALHOTRA is a professor in the Faculty of Law and cross-appointed to the School of Rehabilitation Sciences at the University of Ottawa. BENJAMIN ISITT is a historian and legal scholar based in Victoria, British Columbia.

The Audacity of a Kiss
Love, Art, and Liberation
Leslie Cohen

In this evocative memoir, Leslie Cohen tells the story of a love that has lasted for over fifty years. Transporting the reader to the pivotal time when brave gay women and men carved out spaces where they could live and love freely, she recounts both her personal struggles and the accomplishments she achieved as part of New York’s gay and feminist communities. Foremost among these was her 1976 cofounding of the groundbreaking women’s nightclub Sahara, which played host to such luminaries as Betty Friedan, Gloria Steinem, Pat Benatar, Ntozake Shange, Rita Mae Brown, Adrienne Rich, Patti Smith, Bella Abzug, and Jane Fonda.

LESLIE COHEN has been a museum curator, nightclub owner and promoter, a limousine driver, and a lawyer, as well as a writer whose work has appeared in such publications as Curve and The New York Times Style Magazine.

This Brain Had A Mouth
Lucy Gwin and the Voice of Disability Nation
James M. Odato

Author, advocacy journalist, disability rights activist, feminist, and Mouth magazine founder Lucy Gwin (1943–2014) left her mark by giving those in “handicaptivity” a voice. In this engaging biography, Odato traces the story of Gwin’s life, her activism, and the rise of the disability press. After becoming a brain injury survivor following a 1989 car accident, Gwin came to identify with “Disability Nation” and fervently fought against institutionalization. As an organizer for the group Not Dead Yet, she arranged a major rally outside the US Supreme Court and interacted with the drivers behind the American with Disabilities Act.

The Harlan Renaissance
William H. Turner

The Harlan Renaissance is an intimate remembrance of kinship and community in eastern Kentucky’s coal towns, written by one of the luminaries of Appalachian studies, William Turner. Turner reconstructs Black life in the company towns in and around Harlan County during coal’s final postwar boom years, which built toward an enduring bust as the children of Black miners, like the author, left the region in search of better opportunities. Unfolding through layers of sociological insight and oral history, The Harlan Renaissance centres the sympathetic perspectives and critical eye of a master narrator of Black life.

WILLIAM H. TURNER is a sociologist now based near Houston, Texas. He received a lifetime-of-service award from the Appalachian Studies Association in 2009, which added to other career highlights that include induction into the Kentucky Civil Rights Hall of Fame.

Letters from Red Farm
The Untold Story of the Friendship between Helen Keller and Journalist Joseph Edgar Chamberlin
Elizabeth Emerson

In 1888, a young Helen Keller travelled to Boston with her teacher, Annie Sullivan, where they met a man who would change her life: Boston Transcript columnist and editor, Joseph Edgar Chamberlin. Keller would go on to spend weekends and holidays at Red Farm, the Chamberlin home in Wrentham, Massachusetts, and eventually lived there for a year when she was sixteen. In this engaging biography, we see Keller transformed into a social activist in the boisterous atmosphere of Red Farm, where writers, artists, and reformers of the day congregated.

ELIZABETH EMERSON has contributed to the American Foundation of the Blind Helen Keller Archive, the Perkins School for the Blind Archives’ newsletters, and “Becoming Helen Keller,” from PBS’s American Masters series.

Dancing Past the Light
The Life of Tanaquil Le Clercq
Orel Protopopescu

Dancing Past the Light cinematically illuminates the glamorous and heartbreaking life of Tanaquil “Tanny” Le Clercq (1929–2000), one of the most celebrated ballerinas of the twentieth century, who became paralyzed with polio at the height of her brilliant stage career. Orel Protopopescu recounts Le Clercq’s intense marriage to the company’s renowned choreographer George Balanchine, for whom Le Clercq was a muse, the prototype of the exquisite, long-limbed “Balanchine ballerina.” With insights from interviews with her former friends, students, and colleagues, Dancing Past the Light depicts Le Clercq’s extraordinary capacity to find joy in the dark moments of her dramatic life.

You Better Go See Geri
An Odawa Elder’s Life of Recovery and Resilience
Frances “Geri” Roossien and Andrea Riley Mukavetz

Born into an Odawa family in Michigan in 1932, Frances “Geri” Roossien lived a life that is both ordinary and instructive. As a child, she attended Holy Childhood Boarding School; as an adult, she coped with her trauma through substance abuse; and in recovery she became a respected elder who developed tribally centred programs for addiction and family health, including the first Native American Recovery Group. This book presents Geri’s stories with an introduction by Andrea Riley Mukavetz that centres Geri’s life and the process of oral history in historical and theoretical context.

The Mama Chronicles

A Memoir

Teresa Nicholas

Growing up in the Delta town of Yazoo City, Mississippi, Teresa Nicholas believed that she and her country-born and -bred mother weren’t close. But as her mother’s health deteriorated, Nicholas found herself spending more time in the small town she thought she had left behind. Over long afternoons in front of Turner Classic Movies, she grew closer to her mother, coaxing stories from her about her hardscrabble past – until a major stroke threatened to silence her mother’s newfound voice. The Mama Chronicles is a funny and poignant account of a mother-daughter relationship and, ultimately, a meditation on acceptance and what it means to call a place home.

All the Leavings

Laurie Easter

In All the Leavings, Laurie Easter interrogates her off-grid life in Southern Oregon and its everyday ups and downs, physical and emotional. Her complex, often experimental essays draw on themes of love and danger: her relationships with her mother and with her own daughters; giving birth in a rough cabin, and later desperately seeking help for a critically ill child; encounters with wildlife from birds to mountain lions; mourning with her alternative community over the loss of a teenager; and, of course, the destructive power of wildfire. Easter brings these themes together into a story that draws strength and context from place.

Laurie Easter lives off the grid on the edge of wilderness in southern Oregon. All the Leavings is her first book.

The Ground at my Feet

Sustaining a Family and a Forest

Ann Stinson

The Ground at My Feet is a memoir about loss and grief as well as a portrait of a family, a region, and an industry. It begins as loggers fall trees on a ridge above Southwest Washington’s Cowlitz River. The forest on this ridge has been managed by Ann Stinson’s family for a half-century. She had been away creating a life in New York and Portland, and at age fifty she returns to the family tree farm. Combining personal story and research, Stinson maps the interactions between the land and its people over two centuries: the Cowlitz peoples, homesteaders, and several generations of logging families who have worked the property.

Ann Stinson currently manages the Cowlitz Ridge Tree Farm in Toledo, Washington, and serves as president of the Family Forest Foundation.

Keegan Lester
Words have meaning and meaning evolves over time. In Perfect Dirt, Keegan Lester drags us through his failure to grasp the meaning that always seems to be just beyond his fingertips. These lyrical vignettes depict a lifelong search for home, identity, and the language to say the things we wish we could tell people in the moment. Part memoir, part tour diary, part homage to the places and people who have made him who he is, Perfect Dirt digs into the sometimes painful, sometimes jubilant questions of identity and success.
KEEGAN LESTER is the author of this shouldn’t be beautiful but it was and it was all i had so i drew it, selected by Mary Ruefle for the 2016 Slope Editions Book Prize. His writing has been published in Ploughshares, the Boston Review, Cutbank, Hobart, and Vol. 1 Brooklyn. He lives in New York City.

Slow Fuse of the Possible
A Memoir of Poetry and Psychoanalysis
Kate Daniels
From the beginning of their time together, it is clear that the enigmatic analyst and Daniels are not a good match, yet both are determined to continue their work – the former in nearly complete silence, and the latter as best she can with the tools at her disposal: careful attention to language, deep reading, and literary imagination. Throughout, the story is filtered through the mind of Emily Dickinson, whose poetry Daniels uses as a fulcrum for the interpretation of her own experience. This compelling lyric memoir allows readers a glimpse into the mind of a renowned poet, revealing the dazzling and anguished connections between poetry and psychoanalysis.
KATE DANIELS is the author of six poetry collections. A former Guggenheim Fellow, she is the Edwin Mims Professor of English at Vanderbilt University.

Places
Setouchi Jakuchō; translated by Liza Dalby
In this scintillating work of autobiographical fiction, Setouchi Jakuchō recalls with almost photographic clarity scenes from her past: growing up in the Tokushima countryside in the 1920s, the daughter of a craftsman, and in Tokyo as a young student experiencing the heady freedom of college life; escaping to Kyoto at the end of a disastrous arranged marriage and an ill-starred love affair before returning to Tokyo, with its lively community of artists and writers, to establish herself as a novelist. Her memories, remarkably sharp and clear, provide a fascinating picture of everyday life in Japan in the years surrounding World War II.
SETOUCHI JAKUCHŌ (1922–), born Setouchi Harumi, was a prolific essayist and novelist before taking Buddhist vows and becoming a nun of the Tendai sect at the age of fifty-one. Since then she has continued to publish and is celebrated for her acclaimed modern Japanese translation of Genji monogatari (The Tale of Genji), published in 1998.

The Combat Zone
Murder, Race, and Boston’s Struggle for Justice
Jan Brogan

In 1976, after their last football game of the season, a group of Harvard athletes headed to Boston’s Combat Zone to celebrate. At the end of the night, star athlete Andy Puopolo, born and raised in the city’s North End, was murdered in a stabbing, with three African American men accused of this crime. His murder led the evening news for months to come. The Combat Zone tells the story of this murder and the Puopolo family’s struggle to come to terms with and avenge this death, placing the story in the larger context of Boston in the late 1970s.

JAN BROGAN is a journalist and novelist living in Boston. A former staff writer for The Providence Journal and The Worcester Telegram, her freelance work has appeared in the Boston Globe, Boston Magazine, Ladies’ Home Journal, and Forbes.

Messiahs
Marc Anthony Richardson

Messiahs centers on two nameless lovers, a solitary woman of east Asian descent and a former state prisoner, a black man who volunteered incarceration on behalf of his falsely convicted nephew, yet was “exonerated” after two years on death row. In this dystopian America, one can assume a relative’s capital sentence as an act of holy reform, the Proxy Initiative, patterned after the Passion. Savagely ostracized by her family for years, the woman is asked by her mother to take the Proxy Initiative for her brother – creating a conflict she cannot bear to share with her lover. Guilt, grief, and an otherworldly loyalty all infuse this fiercely ecstatic folktale of betrayal and self-sacrifice.

MARC ANTHONY RICHARDSON is the author of Year of the Rat, winner of the American Book Award. He is the recipient of a PEN America grant, a Hurston/Wright fellowship, a Vermont Studio Center residency, and a writer-in-residency at Rhodes University in South Africa.

The Species Maker
A Novel
Kristin Johnson

When William Jennings Bryan began his campaign to get evolution out of American schools in the 1920s, entomologist Martin Sullivan sought refuge in science, trusting the methods of careful observation and testing to the passion of public debate. But Martin is not able to retreat to his museum specimens for long. Suddenly uprooted from his work at Harvard’s Museum of Comparative Zoology to teach college biology in the Pacific Northwest, Martin finds his students, colleagues, and local residents looking to him to help them understand the day’s heated debates about science, politics, and religion.

Memorial Ride
Stephen Graham Jones; art by Maria Wolf

The graphic novel Memorial Ride is a high-speed, ragtag chase across the American Southwest. Cooper Town, an American Indian soldier, has returned from the Middle East to attend his father’s funeral, make some quick cash off his father’s old Harley, and spend a whirlwind weekend with his girlfriend, Sheri Mun. However, when Coop runs afoul of the violent John Wayne gang, he and Sheri Mun have no choice but to twist the throttle back on that storied chopper and make tracks. Turning the traditional Western on its head, Memorial Ride recasts the genre as a road movie. It’s raucous, it’s violent, and, scarily enough, it might even be true.

STEPHEN GRAHAM JONES is the author of over thirty books, most recently The Only Good Indians and Night of the Mannequins. MARIA WOLF is a Native American graphic artist and designer.

Two Women
Gertrudis Gómez de Avellaneda; translated by Barbara F. Ichiishi

In 1842 a young Cuban woman published in Spain a riveting tale of love and death, so radical in its point of view that it did not appear in her homeland until more than seventy years later. Centering on Catalina the Countess of S., a spellbinding protagonist modeled on the author herself, this romantic love triangle set in upper-class Spain shows the emotional havoc caused by the stern laws and customs governing marriage in the Hispanic world, norms designed for the subjugation and control of women. The story comes to a head when the female rivals for one man’s love are brought together in the same room; the result is unforgettable.

GERTRUDIS GÓMEZ DE AVELLANEDA (1814–1873) was an acclaimed Romantic author who was born and raised in Cuba and spent most of her adult life in Spain. A multifaceted, prolific artist, she authored plays, novels, stories and legends, poetry, autobiographies, essays, and articles.

Meaningful Work
Stories
JoAnna Novak

Meaningful Work is lush, lyrical, and unflinching. Fuelled by jellyfish pad thai and Necco wafers, Mountain Dew and Xiaolongbao, the characters in these stories defy boundaries and mores: a former anorexic, bored of recovery and her clerical job, invites an unparalleled act of sexual defilement; a fleshly preteen fantasizes about Bill Murray on a family vacation to Wisconsin. Celebrating the gruelling beauty of the shift and the ticking virtues of self-restraint, Meaningful Work is a pageant of formal experimentation, in fearless, glittering prose.

JOANNA NOVAK is the author of the novel I Must Have You and two books of poetry: Noirmania and Abeyance, North America.

Stories
Yannick Murphy

The truths revealed and the lives upended in the thirteen luminescent stories that make up Yannick Murphy's By the Time You Read This are at once singularly foreign and uncannily familiar. As disparate as their situations may be, it's Murphy's keen rendering of these characters' lives that sends them hurtling to the forefront of our consciousness and jolts us from our states of sleep. By the Time You Read This illuminates how fraught and contingent the simplest of lives can be, and the often unexpected means available to each of us for our own salvation.

YANNICK MURPHY is the author of the novels The Call; Signed, Mata Hari; Here They Come; and The Sea of Trees. Her story collections include Stories in Another Language and In a Bear's Eye.

x/ex/exis
poems for the nation
Raquel Salas Rivera

Written in the early days of the rise of worldwide fascism and the poet’s gender transition, x/ex/exis: poemas para la nación/poems for the nation accepts the invitation to push poetic and gender imaginaries beyond the bounds set by nation. For Salas Rivera, the x marks Puerto Rican transness in a world that seeks trans death, denial, and erasure. Instead of justifying his existence, he takes up the flag of illegibility and writes an apocalyptic book that screams into an uncertain future, armed with nothing to lose.

The Nighthawk’s Evening
Notes of a Field Biologist
Gretchen N. Newberry

The common nighthawk, Chordeiles minor, has long fascinated birders, scientists, farmers and anyone who has awoken to its raspy calls on a hot city night. The Nighthawk’s Evening charts field biologist Gretchen Newberry’s journey across North America to study these birds, from the islands of British Columbia to rooftops in South Dakota, Oregon sagebrush, California hills, and Wisconsin forests. Newberry focuses on the bird itself – its complex conservation status and cultural significance – and the larger, often hidden world of nocturnal animals. The Nighthawk’s Evening uses one scientist and one species to explore the challenges, disappointments, and successes of scientific research and conservation efforts.

GRETCHEN N. NEWBERRY conducts outreach promoting biodiversity in Wisconsin’s Driftless Area.

Swamplands
Tundra Beavers, Quaking Bogs, and the Improbable World of Peat
Edward Struzik 🍁

In Swamplands, journalist Edward Struzik celebrates the wild places of swamplands and peatlands. These kinds of places are as globally significant as rainforests, and function as critically important carbon sinks for addressing our climate crisis. Yet, because of their reputation as wastelands and vectors for disease, they are being systematically drained and degraded. An ode to peaty landscapes in all their offbeat glory, the book is also a demand for awareness of the myriad threats they face. It urges us to see the beauty and importance in these least likely of places. Our planet’s survival might depend on it.

EDWARD STRUZIK has been writing about scientific and environmental issues for more than thirty years. He is a fellow at the Institute for Energy and Environmental Policy at Queen’s University in Kingston, Ontario.

Patterns of Connection
Essential Essays from Five Decades
Fritjof Capra

Fritjof Capra, scientist, educator, activist, and accomplished author, presents the evolution of his thought over five decades in Patterns of Connection. First introduced in the late 1950s to the work of Werner Heisenberg, a founder of quantum mechanics, Capra quickly intuited the connections between the discoveries of quantum physics and the traditions of Eastern philosophy – resulting in his first book, the bestselling The Tao of Physics. This synthesis, representative of the change from the mechanistic worldview of Descartes and Newton to a systemic, ecological one, went on to inform Capra’s thinking about the life sciences, ecology, and environmental policy.

Fritjof Capra is the recipient of many awards, including the Gold Medal of the UK Systems Society, the Medal of the President of the Italian Republic, and the American Book Award.

Picturing the Space Shuttle
The Early Years
John Bisney and J.L. Pickering

After the excitement of the first Moon landing, the US space program took an ambitious new direction closer to home: NASA’s Space Shuttle program promised frequent access to Earth orbit for medical and scientific breakthroughs; deploying, repairing, and maintaining satellites; and assembling a space station. Picturing the Space Shuttle is the first photographic history of the program’s early years as the world’s first space plane debuted. Showcasing over 450 unpublished and lesser-known images, this book traces the growth of the Space Shuttle from 1965 to 1982, from initial concept through its first four space flights.

John Bisney is a journalist who has covered the space program for CNN, the Discovery Science Channel, and SiriusXM Radio. J.L. Pickering is a space-flight historian and authority who has been archiving rare space images for fifty years.

Otto Preminger

Interviews

Edited by Gary Bettinson

Otto Preminger, whose Hollywood career spanned the 1930s through the 1970s, is popularly remembered for the films he directed, including The Man with the Golden Arm, the CinemaScope musical Carmen Jones, and the riveting courtroom drama Anatomy of a Murder. The nineteen interviews from across Preminger’s career, providing fascinating insights into the methods and mindset of a wildly polarizing filmmaker. With remarkable candour, Preminger discusses his filmmaking practices, his battles against censorship and the Hollywood blacklist, his clashes with film critics, and his turbulent relationships with well-known stars.

GARY BETTINSON is a senior lecturer in film studies at Lancaster University. He is the author of The Sensuous Cinema of Wong Kar-wai: Film Poetics and the Aesthetic of Disturbance.

Triumph Over Containment

American Film in the 1950s

Robert P. Kolker

The long 1950s were a period of “containment culture” in America, as the media worked to reinforce traditional family values and suspected communist sympathizers were blacklisted. Yet some brave filmmakers and actors still challenged the status quo to produce indelible and imaginative work that delivered uncomfortable truths to Cold War audiences. Triumph Over Containment offers an uncompromising look at some of the era’s greatest films and directors, from household names like Alfred Hitchcock and Stanley Kubrick to lesser-known iconoclasts like Samuel Fuller and Ida Lupino.

ROBERT P. KOLKER is a professor emeritus at the University of Maryland in College Park. He is the author of numerous books, including The Extraordinary Image: Orson Welles, and Alfred Hitchcock, Stanley Kubrick and the Reimagining of Cinema.

Neo-Burlesque

Striptease as Transformation

Lynn Sally

The neo-burlesque movement seeks to restore a sense of glamour, theatricality, and humour to striptease. Neo-burlesque performers strut their stuff in front of audiences that appreciate their playful brand of pro-sex, often gender-bending, feminism. Performance studies scholar and acclaimed burlesque artist Lynn Sally offers an inside look at the history, culture, and philosophy of New York’s neo-burlesque scene. Revealing how twenty-first century neo-burlesque is in constant dialogue with the classic burlesque of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, she considers how today’s performers use camp to comment on preconceived notions of femininity.

LYNN SALLY is a practising scholar and artist. She received her PhD in Performance Studies from New York University where she has taught burlesque since 2004.

All I Ever Wanted

A Rock 'n' Roll Memoir

Kathy Valentine

At twenty-one, Kathy Valentine was at the Whisky in Los Angeles when she met a guitarist from a fledgling band called the Go-Go’s – and the band needed a bassist. The Go-Go’s became the first multi-platinum–selling, all-female band to play instruments themselves, write their own songs, and have a number one album. For Valentine, the band’s success was the fulfillment of a lifelong dream – but it’s only part of her story. All I Ever Wanted traces the path that took her from her childhood in Texas to the height of rock’n’roll stardom, devastation after the collapse of the band that had come to define her, and the quest to regain her sense of self after its end.

KATHY VALENTINE is a working musician and songwriter. Valentine has also worked as an actor, public speaker and spokesperson, and producer.

Woman Walk the Line

How the Women in Country Music Changed Our Lives

Holly Gleason

Full-tilt, hardcore, down-home, and groundbreaking, the women of country music speak volumes with every song. Whether it’s Rosanne Cash eulogizing June Carter Cash or a seventeen-year-old Taylor Swift considering the golden glimmer of another precocious superstar, Brenda Lee, it’s the humanity beneath the music that resonates. Woman Walk the Line is a personal collection of essays from some of America’s most intriguing women writers. It speaks to the ways in which artists mark our lives at different ages and in various states of grace and imperfection – and ultimately how music transforms not just the person making it, but also the listener.

HOLLY GLEASON is a music critic, academic, and artist development consultant. Her work has appeared in Rolling Stone, the Los Angeles Times, and the New York Times.

The Jazz Masters
Setting the Record Straight
Peter C. Zimmerman

The Jazz Masters features twenty-one conversations with musicians who have had at least fifty years of professional experience. Appealing to casual fans and jazz aficionados alike, these interviews have been carefully, but minimally, edited by Peter Zimmerman, without changing any of the musicians’ actual words. The musicians interviewed for the book range in age from their early seventies to their mid-nineties. Older musicians started their careers during the segregation of the Jim Crow era, while the youngest came up during the struggle for civil rights. All grapple with issues of race, performance, and jazz’s rich legacies.

PETER C. ZIMMERMAN has been a music writer for more than three decades and is the author of Tennessee Music.

How people eat today is a record of food use through the ages – and not just the decadent, delicious foods but the less glamorous and often life-saving foods from periods of famine as well. In Famine Foods, Paul E. Minnis focuses on the myriad plants that have sustained human populations throughout the course of history, unveiling those that people have consumed, and often still consume, to avoid starvation.

The Beloved Border
Humanity and Hope in a Contested Land
Miriam Davidson

The Beloved Border is a potent and timely report on the US-Mexico border. Though this book tells of the unjust death and suffering that occurs in the borderlands, Davidson gives us hope that the US-Mexico border could be, and in many ways already is, a model for peaceful coexistence.

Policy, Activism, and Indigenous Identities on the U.S.-Mexico Border
Christina Leza

Divided Peoples addresses the impact border policies have on traditional lands and the peoples who live there – whether environmental degradation, border patrol harassment, or the disruption of traditional ceremonies. The author examines local interpretations and uses of international rights tools by Indigenous activists, counterdiscourse on the US-Mexico border, and challenges faced by Indigenous border activists when communicating their issues to a broader public.

Barbed Voices
Oral History, Resistance, and the World War II Japanese American Social Disaster
Arthur A. Hansen; foreword by Lane Ryo Hirabayashi

Hansen’s writing provides a basis for understanding why, when, where, and how some of the 120,000 incarcerated Japanese Americans opposed the threats to themselves, their families, and their community. Examining the emotional implications of targeted systemic incarceration, Hansen highlights the psychological traumas that transformed Japanese American identity and culture.

The Mountaineer Site
A Folsom Winter Camp in the Rockies
Brian N. Andrews, David J. Meltzer, and Mark Stiger

The Mountaineer Site presents over a decade's worth of archaeological research conducted at Mountaineer, a Paleoindian campsite in Colorado’s Upper Gunnison Basin. Mountaineer is one of the very few extensively excavated, long-term Folsom occupations with evidence of built structures. The site provides a rich record of stone tool manufacture and use, as well as architectural features, and offers insight into Folsom period adaptive strategies from a time when the region was still in the grip of a waning Ice Age.

Stone Houses and Earth Lords
Maya Religion in the Cave Context
Edited by Keith M. Prufer and James E. Brady

Stone Houses and Earth Lords is the first volume dedicated exclusively to the use of caves in the Maya Lowlands, covering primarily Classic Period archaeology from A.D. 100 through the Spaniards’ arrival. Although the caves that riddled the lowlands show no signs of habitation, most contain evidence of human use – evidence that suggests that they functioned as ritual spaces.

Women's Ways of Making
Edited by Maureen Daly Goggin and Shirley K. Rose

Women's Ways of Making draws attention to material practices – those that the hands perform – as three epistemologies – an episteme, a techne, and a phronesis – that together give pointed consideration to making as a rhetorical embodied endeavour. Combined, these epistemologies show that making is a form of knowing that (episteme), knowing how (techne), and wisdom-making (phronesis).

Jewels, Jewelry, and Other Shiny Things in the Buddhist Imaginary
Edited by Vanessa R. Sasson

Renunciation is a core value in the Buddhist tradition, but Buddhism is not necessarily austere. Jewels – along with heavenly flowers, rays of rainbow light, and dazzling deities – shape the literature and the material reality of the tradition. Scholarship has often looked past this splendour, favoring the theory of renunciation instead, but in this volume, scholars from a wide range of disciplines consider the role jewels play in the Buddhist imaginary, putting them front and centre for the first time.

Veteran-Writers and the Politics of Memoir
Myra Mendible

American War Stories explores the complex relationship between memory and politics in the context of postmodern war, focusing on memoirs written by veterans of the Vietnam, Iraq, and Afghanistan conflicts. Myra Mendible places these stories in conversation with broader cultural and political discourses and examines the volatile mix of agendas, identities, and issues informing veteran authors’ aesthetic, ideological, and narrative choices.

Technological innovation has long threatened the printed book, but ultimately, most digital alternatives to the codex have been on-screen replications. Archival Fictions explores how contemporary authors imagine a speculative history of media technology through formal experimentation. Using approaches from media history, film studies, and the digital humanities, Benzon shows how authors who engage technology through form imagine a new role for print literature across the late twentieth and early twenty-first centuries.

Transforming Girls
The Work of Nineteenth-Century Adolescence
Julie Pfeiffer
This study of nineteenth-century young adult literature refocuses the history of girls’ books and female adolescence in the United States and Germany. It also outlines an alternate model for imagining adolescence and supporting adolescent girls. The awkward adolescent girl – so popular in mid-nineteenth-century fiction for girls – remains a valuable resource for understanding contemporary girls and stories about them.

Comics and the Origins of Manga
A Revisionist History
Eike Exner
Japanese comics, commonly known as manga, are a global sensation. Critics, scholars, and everyday readers have often viewed this artform through an Orientalist framework, treating manga as the exotic antithesis to American and European comics. In reality, the history of manga is deeply intertwined with Japan’s avid importation of Western technology and popular culture in the early twentieth century. Comics and the Origins of Manga offers a new understanding of this increasingly influential art form.

Street Gangs and Statecraft in Honduras
John Horne Carter
Gang-related violence has forced thousands of Hondurans to flee their country, leaving behind everything as refugees and undocumented migrants abroad. To uncover how this happened, John Carter looks back to the mid-2000s, when neighbourhood gangs were scrambling to survive state violence and mass incarceration, locating there a critique of neoliberal globalization and state corruption that foreshadows Honduras’s current crises.

Like a Child Would Do
An Interdisciplinary Approach to Childlikeness in Past and Current Societies
Edited by Mathieu Alemany Oliver and Russell W. Belk

Adult childlikeness is familiar to everyone. However, childlikeness remains a little-studied and catch-all concept. Navigating between classical Chinese fiction, Shakespearean characters, the arts, consumer society, psychoanalysis, evolutionary theories, interactions with computers at work, toy play, or law courts, this book provides a better understanding of the concept of childlikeness.

POLITICAL HISTORY / CANADIAN POLITICS
On Dark and Bloody Ground: An Oral History of the West Virginia Mine Wars
Anne T. Lawrence; foreword by Catherine Venable Moore
In 1972 Anne Lawrence came to West Virginia to conduct interviews with participants in and observers of the Battle of Blair Mountain and other mine wars of the 1920s and ‘30s. Key selections from those oral histories appear here for the first time as a published book, supplemented with introductory material, maps, and photographs. The volume’s vivid, conversational mode invites readers into miners’ lived experiences.

Rock Climbing in Kentucky’s Red River Gorge: An Oral History of Community, Resources, and Tourism
James N. Maples
Rock Climbing in Kentucky’s Red River Gorge documents, for the first time, fifty years of oral history from this famous climbing community. Maples reconstructs the growth of rock climbing in the region – including a twice-failed dam project, mysterious first routes, and unauthorized sport-route growth on public lands. The book details five decades of collaborations to secure ongoing access to some of the world’s most beautiful and technically demanding routes and the challenges along the way.

Engaging the Atom: The History of Nuclear Energy and Society in Europe from the 1950s to the Present
Edited by Arne Kaijser, Markku Lehtonen, Jan-Henrik Meyer, and Mar Rubio-Varas
Engaging the Atom explores evolving relationships between society and the nuclear sector from the origins of civilian nuclear power until the present, asking why nuclear energy has been more contentious in some countries than in others. Contributors examine the challenges facing the nuclear sector in the context of aging reactor fleets, pressing climate urgency, and increasing competition from renewable energy sources.

Cannel Coal Oil Days: A Novel
Theophile Maher, edited by Edward Watts
Cannel Coal Oil Days challenges many popular ideas about antebellum Appalachia, bringing it more fully into the broader story of the United States. Written in 1887, discovered in 2018, and published here for the first time, it offers a narrative of life between 1859 and 1861 in what was then western Virginia as it became West Virginia. Maher’s semi-autobiographical novel tells of a series of interrelated changes, each reflecting larger transformations in the United States.

Past Titan Rock: Journeys into an Appalachian Valley
Ellesa Clay High; foreword by Travis D. Stimeling
Set in Red River Gorge, an area of steep ridges and box canyons, this book is a multigenre, multivocal re-creation of life in eastern Kentucky. Through a combination of personal essay, oral history, and short fiction emerges a portrait of a mountain culture rich in custom, oral tradition, and song. Past Titan Rock demonstrates the depth of community and raises questions about how to resist destructive forces today.

Memoirs of the Life, Religious Experience, Ministerial Travels, and Labours of Mrs. Elaw
Zilpha Elaw; edited by Kimberly D. Blockett
As a young Black orphan indentured to a Quaker family in Bristol, Pennsylvania, Zilpha Elaw (c. 1793–1873) decided to join the upstart Methodists in 1808. She preached her first sermon a decade later, ignoring her husband and the many church leaders, clergy, and laity who tried to silence her. This is a remarkable story of an antebellum Black woman’s personal and professional mobility.
